HEADMASTER SPEAKS

MR. JOHN B. CASEY

As inevitably as the seasons pass, so end your school days, and the time of your graduation approaches.

Your teachers have looked forward to this time as eagerly as you if for a different reason. You have anticipated release from the burdens of home lessons; we have hoped that the so-called burdens have borne fruit in the training of your character, mind, and body.

Let us eliminate the platitudes ordinarily voiced on these occasions; instead, may we advise only that you live truthfully, honorably, and justly — a credit to your parents, to your school, and to your country.

We trust you may realize as far as possible, through further education and guidance, the powers within you; and may you strive always to avail yourselves of the limitless opportunities offered to those willing to persevere.

YEARBOOK

1947. Time for another edition of our Jamaica Plain High School Yearbook! Sophomore and Junior years we purchased books to show our school spirit, but now that we are Seniors we find the Yearbook is our book, our own history, for it contains the photographic record of our Senior year. In the making we have combined pleasure with "headaches" but, in spite of everything, we have had fun and the feeling of "coming out on top."

Although this year the book is more expensive because of increased costs of materials, we are pleased with the excellent support our treasurers and teachers have received throughout our school. Congratulations!

The Yearbook Staff extends sincere gratitude to Mr. Casey, our teachers, fellow students, and advertisers for their valued assistance and counsel in the attempt to make this book a success.

And now, having presented ourselves, we rest our case with the hope that you will find the remainder of the book less boring.

CLASS DAY of 1947

MISS FRANCIS R. CAMPION, Advisor

Class Poem

Three years ago our goal seemed far,
Our future not quite clear,
But now that it is drawing close,
These days seem more than dear.

The time is here when we must part
And go into the world so wide,
To find what Fate has willed for us
Within life's flowing tide.

We leave our spirit, never-dying,
And stories to be told,
Of fights that brought us victory
For our Purple and our Gold.

We wailed at times if tasks were hard;
But now we understand,
They've helped us find that recompense,
For us so clearly planned.

We've gathered friends along our way,
And mem'ries that will never fade,
For all the golden moments
Are in our thoughts forever laid.

Within our hearts you'll never change,
Though countless years may roll along,
To us you'll be our Alma Mater,
Forever sacred, fine, and strong.

BETTE PREBLE '47

Class History

They say that a first impression is a lasting one, but no, that is not true of a sophomore's first impression of J.P.H.S.

I think we all had the same impressions when we walked into the school with pop-eyes bulging with curiosity to look the place up and down. We went up to the hall and heard a little talk by Mr. Casey, and then we went to different rooms to fill out those queer papers called elective sheets. This is where we had the fun! Most of us didn't know whether we were coming or going, and it's a wonder that I didn't end up by electing a course in dressmaking; in fact some pupils took courses they never wanted simply because the Y or the Z appealed to them.

The first two or three weeks were lost Weeks Without End. We thought the program language too foreign and difficult for us; and how could we know where 117 or 307 was located? Nobody ever told us.

Finally, we settled down and became a part of the school life. We found out that J.P. was really a nice place after all, and not what we thought it was at first. I won't say what we thought of it then, but I can say that we didn't think it was a fun house. So when we found out that the school was a nice place our first impression didn't last.

Our sophomore year was a happy one for almost all of us. Most of us studied and had fun as we went along; others just had fun. We were all filled with school spirit and most of us went out for sports, joined clubs, and had a "swell" time.

One thing we found out as sophomores was that Seniors were the high and mighty masters—at least they thought they were. We were very beligerent where they were concerned because we wanted to show them that their seniority did not affect us. When we got to be Seniors the whole picture changed because we really thought that we were the "big shots" and that the Sophomores were a little too big for their breeches.

Jim Talis showed us all that he was going to be the source of many laughs. I'll never forget the day that he came up with the idea of making fur coats out of pussy willows. He was going to grow thousands of them and make his fortune. If it were anyone else, I probably would not say anything about it, but Jim has shown us that, besides being a funny fellow, he is also one of the best natured; he can take a joke better than anyone I've seen.

As Juniors we were "between the devil and the deep, blue sea," so to speak. We still had Seniors to look up to with a saucy eye, but we also had Sophomores to look down on. When we came back in September of our Junior year we went around to our new classes with an experienced air while the Sophomores floundered.

We went in for extra-curricular activities as we had done before. The boys were anxious to give our new coach, Mr. Bond, a fine set of athletic teams. All of us attended the fine Senior play that year, "Green Stockings", and we looked forward to making ourselves known as actors in our Senior play.

Agriculture and Math were two outstanding classes this year. In both of them we were patient wreckers.

Mr. Donaghy thought he had a tough time doing a problem one day and he said that he'd give twenty-five dollars to anyone who could get it right. We all got it, and demanded full payment. He was really surprised. We were very disappointed when we didn't get our twenty-five dollars, so we declared war on Mr. Donaghy. Bill Stefaney had us rolling one day when he brought in a newspaper the headlines of which read, "Donaghy jilts class out of $2500." Of course the sum was a bit exaggerated but we all laughed when Bill walked into class and started to read the newspaper with the headline held up for Mr. Donaghy to see. Mr. Donaghy gave a half-hearted smile and went on to teach the class.

As for Math we are still wondering if our blank looks kept Mr. Mealy out of school during the latter part of the year. He would spend nearly a whole period explaining something to us and then ask if we understood. All we did was look smug and turn our puzzled faces from the black board to him and back again. It's a wonder he didn't go really mad!

Miss O'Malley kept History interesting by telling tales that weren't in the book and by discussing current events.

Jim Talis kept things lively by walking up to Mr. O'Leary in the corridor, slapping him on the back and saying, "Say there, Mr. er-er- Don-aghy." If looks could kill, poor Jim would be in heaven now.

With all these memories we came back to school in the fall of 1946 ready to take our exalted positions as Seniors. Were we surprised when we found out that the Sophomores and Juniors treated us as plain, ordinary people.

Even though we were a bit set back at this discovery we went on to make this a wonderful year. We got down to work and started to shape up our Yearbook and get the Clarion ready for printing.

The elections were, of course, the big feature in the early part of the year. We got them over early and elected Billy Day, President; Mary O'Connell, Vice-President; Barbara Scurrah, Secretary, and Stella Case, Treasurer.

Sports were great this year with football leading us off to a good start. We had many victories with such stars as Jackson, Barrett, O'Connor, and Sullivan. The track team won the first quad meet of the season and was voted high in the others. In the relay carnival our medley team broke the district school record, held since 1935 by another Jamaica team. It consisted of Jenkins, Cronin, Bennett, and Quinn. John Gavin won many honors in the 1000 yards run. Jim Talis was a consistent, popular performer in this same race. Hockey and Basketball turned out well, also.

We were quite disappointed when we found out that Miss Chesley was not going to have a Senior play. We realized, however, that it was quite a job and that she had done it for quite a while; however, we joined with members of other classes and put on a Variety Show under the direction of Miss O'Malley.

Billy Day got himself into an embarrassing situation one day by copying someone's Math home-lesson—name and all. Mr. Mealy sure surprised him the next day. I was surprised, too, when Mr. Mealy said he got two papers from me.

The Senior Prom is, of course, the big event in a Senior's life; but not much can be said about it at the time because it has not been held as yet. We are going to make it a spring affair this year—at the Commonwealth Country Club on May 2, 1947.

We had many interesting classes this year. Mr. Cunningham made English lively with his impersonation of Giuseppe, da barber. Mr. Wendler gained great favor in Agriculture by bringing in apples and other fruits for us to sample. Chemistry turned out to be a very interesting subject although it took time to master the Bunsen burners.

The noted Professor Quiz visited the school this year and put on a show with the pupils as contestants. Betty Preble will never forget the surprise she got when he presented her with a beautiful wrist watch for being the champ.

Now we realize that we will soon leave our school to go out into the big, wide world. Some of us will go to college and start our school days over again. Others will go out to work but I know that we'll all be back someday to see the old school because it's a "swell" place to come back to.

CHARLES KIDDY.

Class Prophecy

It is 1960; I find that I am not the only one who has learned of the event which I am about to witness. As Priscilla Bott is editor of the Boston Globe, this affair has been given quite a bit of publicity. Surely no one from C46 would want to miss a debate between Mr. Donnellan and his former student, Kathleen Burns. The topic to be discussed is "Why Light A Bunsen Burner?"

As Kathleen has not yet arrived, I have plenty of time to look around and see who is here. Mrs. McDonald, the former Marie Bartsch, just came in accompanied by her husband and three, no, I guess it's four little redheaded girls.

Pat Connor has also arrived, and with her is Ellen Cusick. Pat has finally decided that she wants to be a math teacher; but Ellen, a swimming champion back in '47, is now instructor at Curtis Hall and is trying to persuade Pat to stick to her company of Junior Achievers, who are making the bathing suits which Miss Johnson has finally secured for the girls.

Marion Colwill, Miss Johnson's new assistant, just came over to tell me about the smooth refreshment bar which Dorothy Broadwater has set up outside the school gym. Dorothy takes great joy in giving out free gum to the girls as they enter gym classes.

Dolly Cook shares the booth with Dorothy and sells mimeographed copies of Mr. Cunningham's tests to his E8 classes. Evelyn Albach is here with her teacher-husband and with her is Louise Eichner Ginkas.

As I came in, Pat Bower, now a famous concert pianist, informed me that she has pretty stiff competition in Anne Doherty, composer of the well known "Left-handed Concerto". I find that June Elias is another of our classmates who is nationally known. She is now a doctor at Chelsea Naval Hospital; what better medicine could the patient have than a visit from June?

Margaret Burke, a model for Charm Magazine, informs me that she is not the only J.P. girl who has been successful in the fashion world. Natalie Donahue is a fashion designer,—between trips to Dartmouth; and Joan Diggins is famous as a cover girl. Margaret also tells me that Mary Connolly and Margaret Davis are doing a fine job at managing the Bell Telephone Company.

I now turn to find Helen Donovan beside me. Helen, who now holds a position with the Internal Revenue Department, tells me that she has been figuring the taxes of Mary Craven and her author-husband. The Doyles, we hear, certainly can claim quite a few deductions for their thirteen children. Rose Cotugno, Irene Coulman, and Dorothy Donnelly, three successful business executives, just arrived dressed in the latest mode.

Natalie Cameron, that talented young lady, though successful as a clothes designer, has turned her talents toward the silver screen and is playing the title role in "The Life Of Betty Hutton." Miss Dowd seems to be the most frequent passenger on the 8:55 bus line which Mary Breslin and Sentina Di Rienzo operate along Greenough Avenue.

Pat Blood certainly remained loyal to her Alma Mater by roping those rugged J.P. boys into her dancing classes. After three short lessons they become smooth prom-prospects.

If you have been wondering why the J.P. badminton and volley ball teams have become suddenly victorious, the fact that Betty Bradley and Pat Cahill are umpires may enlighten you; and those smooth cheers from the sidelines are led by none other than our own Irene Cotter.

Mr. O'Leary must have been disappointed that Joan Coleman didn't return to assist him in the Spanish Department. Joan had other ideas, however, and was married immediately after graduation to her prom date.

Just as the debate is about to start, I get a flash broadcast begging someone to come and claim Barbara Belknap, who is sitting calmly on the top shelf of the Lost and Found Department at Dudley Station. This program, sponsored by Marie Dufly, is now signing off to the strains of "McDonald's Farm".

ESTELLA CASE 102.

Chapter 2

The sky looks so beautiful through this airplane window. It reminds me of that song "Old Butter-milk Sky". Back in '47 that song sure made a hit. Those were the good old days. Somehow when you look at the world today it seems as if everything is going to the dogs, and this younger generation, my oh my!

The crazy things that happen. Why only this morning I picked up the newspapers and read an article about my old pal Barbara O'Brien. It seems that after all these years she had a yearning to see the world without her freckles, so she went to a specialist to have them removed. The specialist and his wife, a nurse, were astonished; they never saw so many, and all on one person. Their curiosity wouldn't let them alone so they decided to pay Barbs three dollars an hour so they could count them. What a racket! Unfortunately the doctor seemed to have lost his mental balance; but his wife, the former Arlene Wattrich, is continuing the work; nothing can shake her mental stability.

It will be good to be back home again. Europe is wonderful, but there's no place like home. Thinking of the old days, I met Anna Van Dyck in Holland. Somehow she got to thinking that may be the little boy who stopped the flood by plugging up the hole in the dyke with his finger is an ancestor of hers; so with Peggy Slade, her personal secretary, Anna is looking up her family tree. Passing through Sweden, I discovered that Marilyn Wiberg was giving extensive lectures on the wonders of X-ray. The lecture halls were packed, but I noticed that most of the listeners bring their binoculars with them. I have a strange suspicion that they're interested in those fascinating dimples.

I caught her after one of the lectures and asked her about our old friend Ginny Winquist. Ginny did pretty well; she retired from nursing and got married. Now she has two children, a boy named Jack and a girl named Jacqueline.

While in Europe I had to stop off at Greece. The education in Greece is being revolutionized by Thalia Solovicus. One of her new methods is a unique way of teaching the kiddies their alphabet. That's right, she wears her Greek alphabet sweater to class every day. I passed through Italy on my way home. The people are very excited because Helen Visconti has decided to build a villa on one of those lovely hillsides where she will focus her attention on painting and composing, as a vacation from dancing. I never saw a girl with so much talent.

I must put my pen down for a few minutes; Miss Frances Sampson, the stewardess, is going to treat us to one of Rosalie Vicari's latest movies. * * * I really enjoyed that picture. Rosalie with her gorgeous, long, black hair can wear those sarongs better than Dottie Lamour ever did.

Sweeney is snoozing again. She gets awfully tired. Shirley likes to travel, too, and since both of us are so interested in algebra we made an agreement and now travel together. I could never solve those algebra problems, but Sweeney always could, so I make them up and Sweeney solves them. That last one must have been pretty tough; it didn't take her long to fall asleep. Just a few minutes ago she was telling me what a success Rita Stenson is as a principal of a girl's high school. In fact in the very same school June Young is the nurse, and guess what—Claire Thomas is the doctor. Under this able direction the children are turning out to be real healthy scholars.

"Sweeney, wake up, we're in New York. We just landed. Let's go into that building and find out what time the plane leaves for Boston.

Well what do you know, there are the two Kays, Sheedy and Sullivan behind that big desk. Looks as if they're enjoying their work especially with those handsome aviators going back and forth. Oh, gee, a storm! We'll have to wait until tomorrow for a plane. Let's get a taxi; I'm stopping off at Ann Wilcox's Beauty Shoppe, to have my hair done. I think I'll have it done in one of the new Wiseman styles, but which one? She's such a clever stylist. Oh dear! I lost those beautiful mittens that Marjorie Thoner made for me. After she finished her course on Home Economics at Simmons, she decided to go further into the field. Now with her huge family she won't have time to knit me another pair.

Oh, Taxi! Taxi! Why, Kay Slowe, when did you go into this business? Imagine meeting you! What a small world!

This is station W.J.P.H.S., Jamaica Plain's largest radio studios, located on Elm Street, Jamaica Plain.

Today our newscast "Report to the Nation" is presented by the Pelham Club, largest nightclub in New England, owned by our old associate Dan Ansourian. Now here is your favorite reporter Raymond Gram Costello.

Good afternoon! First, the political news. Our local Senators Jackson, Munroe, and Healy have succeeded in passing their bill which limits the number of school days to three a week. This has caused chaotic rejoicing among the younger set in our nation.

Now for the local news of the day. Mr. William Day has just opened the largest dance hall this side of the Mississippi and is now featuring the famous band of George Sullivan and his floating rhythm.

Mr. John Donlon, a local man, has just been appointed to the job of Regional Truant Officer by Major William A. Bartsch. Mr. Donlon is very much suited to this job because of his experience in former days.

The local firm of Harper and Delaney, Inc., landscape architects, has been awarded the Dooley Prize for a sensational new method of landscape design. Here is a transcription: Are you a wall flower? Why not come to us and you will soon be as popular as your other friends. The Bodio-Scanlon Dance Studios will teach anyone dancing in one lesson.

Now more local news of the day. The "Book of the Month Club" has two new vice presidents, Mr. Robert Bates and Mr. James Bonner, two former English professors at Harvard.

An item on fashion presented by Mr. Francis Brown, designer for Esquire Magazine, says that men's clothes will soon be made of old newspapers. This will mean that a man will now be able to wear his suit and read it, too.

Mr. Donald Harrington, local stock broker, has made another million in the steady rise of steel stocks.

A new sensational clock has just been put on the market by the Harris and Harwood Clock Co. This clock has a silent alarm for people who want to sleep late.

Now before the sport news, we present another electrical transcription presented by the Bills, Bowlby, and Boyce Brewing Co. makers of B.B.B. Ale:

"If your son hits you with a b b,
Please don't get mad at him;
Just grab a glass of B.B.B.
And forget all of his sin."

The sporting news! Flash! Frank Barrett has been given permission to continue as playing coach of football at J. P.

The local relay team of Gavin, Gibbons, Cronin, and Campbell have just set a new world's record at the Olympic games at Gubenstrassel, Finland. These boys have been breaking track records since their first Hallowe'en in Jamaica Plain.

The famous Emil Harris has just been bought by the Boston Celtics basketball team. It is said that he can shoot a basket full count with ease. This will be a great help to our local five.

Now folks, your announcer, Bob Olinder.

This is your announcer, saying, "Stay tuned to W.J.P.H.S. for the best in listening.

Good day.

Chapter 4

Here I am—a patient in the Lois Hughes Hospital. When and why did it happen? I'll just bore you with a few details.

I was calmly minding my own business, walking across the street last week—June 2, 1957—like any normal jay walker, when a car shot around a corner and hit me. Like the proverbial light, out I went. Next time I opened my eyes, Irene Hinchey, head nurse of the Hughes Hospital, was tucking me into this very bed. Over in a corner, Muriel Gagnon and Barbara Keating, two brilliant nurses were wondering whether Dr. Hayhurst would remove my appendix or my tonsils. With that thought in mind, I asked Miss Hinchey for a book. She handed me that book of excellent advice "Early Does It" by Betty Flanagan, and the head of the English Department at Jamaica Plain, June Hoffman. It was written for those poor unfortunates who haven't yet learned how to get to school on time. There is no doubt that they are authorities on the subject.

Remember Joan Kamp who swore she would be an old maid? Well, she just left the hospital with her husband and her third set of triplets.

When Charline Heller and Eleanor Gifun, reporters from the "Daily Globe," interviewed me for facts, they informed me that Bernadine Halpin was the police woman who arrested Gloria Frongillo, the careless driver who hit me. Even with a car, Gloria hasn't been able to arrive places on time.

There wasn't much said about the accident in the "Globe" but it did inform me that Gilda Filippone has revolutionized the U. S. A. by being the first woman Treasurer of the Commonwealth. Guess she got her practice from being homeroom treasurer of 204! Pat Kelley learned so much about publication while on the "Yearbook" staff she now publishes the paper.

What do you know! Barbara Hudson has set a record in roller skating. She skates on her hands.

In the art section, every one interested in art keeps his eyes centered on Athena Gargilis and Dorothy Jordan. It is pretty difficult to decide who is the better artist.

The women's page had a special feature written by the famed hair stylist Catherine Johnston. We are all dazzled by the stunning hairdos she has created for the gals to startle their husbands with.

Has any one of you seen the dictionary that is outselling Webster's? It has been edited by Audrey Fisher. Even in high school she twisted the English language to meet her demand!

"Meow" edited by Virginia Feeley disclosed that Doris Holland met the cutest boy at night school. Now they're married and help each other with their shorthand.

Marjorie May has been hard on her husbands. From good authority we hear that she has married a third. We knew you wanted to get married Margie, but—!

Miss Hughes' private secretary, Pauline Cook, dropped in to offer a little cheerful gossip. She informed me that Josephine Federico and Adele Feidler were doing a very nice job in the book-keeping department. Pauline was talking to Joan Jackson who still hasn't decided whether she will go to college. While we were talking, Gaynor Inman's band entertained us on the radio. That's one gal who can blow a trumpet. Pauline had had lunch with Jean Hay who is kept quite busy as a dental nurse. She is so busy that she had to hire Marguerite Fennessey for her secretary. Edith Juergens works in the same office. However, her salesmanship courses didn't touch too much upon selling teeth.

Joan Golden's long hours spent in business school really paid off. She is now private and personal secretary to our president, Kay Friel, who was elected because she was always the first girl in school.

The lab technician Sophie George has come to wheel me away, so I guess that ends this "Class Prophecy of 1947.

BARBARA HIMMELMAN 204.

Chapter 5

It is the year 1957 and I, like most other class prophecy writers am taking the customary trip to the dear old prison on the rock (called the castle on the hill by the more optimistic students). On first arriving at J.P., I dash down to the locker room from force of habit, and there I run into a cobweb covered object which turns out to be Dot Killian, still a waiting the return of her soap and towel which she so faithfully lent to us after each and every gym period back in '47. After dusting off Dot, we go up to the office to find Marie McCool, the secretary, breaking in her new assistant, Ann Lyons. Glenna Maling rushes in and out; evidently her job as truant officer keeps her quite busy. In 206 we find Marie Federico teaching

English; she never did like Miss Donlan's interpretation of "Lord Jim." Next door Miss MacDonald (Lois, that is) can be heard telling her history class that a map a day will earn an A. Up in the chemistry lab. we find Estella Case, with greying hair, still waiting for those crystals to form; no one ever told her that the Science Fair was over ten years ago. Stelle tells us that Mr. Casey has finally found a speaker for his assemblies who pleases the student body; she is Mary O'Connell, radical young politician whose favorite topic is, "No school for all schools in Boston."

Leaving J.P., we decide to ride to the Eleanor Trabish Bridge, named by a Rhode Island engineer for his wife. On the way we meet Mrs. Martell, the former Betty Norris, and Gerry Morgan, now Mrs. Hankard, who is attended by a couple of young sparkies. They tell us that Joan Murnane is raising blond Fuller boys for the sole purpose of having them break little girls' hearts, and that Kay Mulcey's son, Frank junior, has been thrown out of school for talking. Passing the Mason and May chemical laboratories we find Bev swimming in a near-by lake while Carol spends her time trying to figure out what the gas was in experiment No. 58. Jeanne Morrison, a very efficient doctor, is kept on hand just in case!

Mary Filippone has become an illustrious commercial artist, Phyllis Kelley a navy nurse, and Mary Montinare a very prosperous old maid on her brother's money; Rita Lake is on her sugar farm where she raises cain to her heart's content.

Theresa Lennon, Phyllis Cooke and Irene Lyle are modeling for Peggy LaVie, creator of beautiful blouses.

Corrine Morash is queen of the Ice Capades, Mildred McEleaney a roller skating star, and Frances Mirabello a world champion bowler.

Turning on the car radio we are entertained by Jeanne Morrissey, singer on the Hit Parade, and Lorraine Nardone, accomplished concert pianist.

Marilyn MacKenzie is still collecting money for the Red Cross, and Mary Nee is the manager of Woolworth's. Ann McCue owns her own roller skating rink and Jeanette Mara, vice-president of the John Hancock Life Insurance Company, is constantly telling her private secretary, Evie MacDonald, that "I am in charge around here when the boss is not in, and I am the head of this department, and I have thirteen men and women under me."

What about Jean McCoy? She has gone into the convent, of course!

BARBARA O'BRIEN 205.

Chapter 6

It is Friday the 13th, 1957; I decide to close my lab and spend the afternoon visiting my old Alma Mater.

I take a seat at the back of the street car and proceed to read my newspaper. The first item I read is the lovelorn column, written by that woman about town, Patricia Regele. The letter of the day has been submitted by Amy Ritchie who would like to know the formula for catching an architect. On the next page are the birth announcements. Joan Rightmyer, now Mrs. Bill Austin, is the proud mother of two red headed twins. The rest of the page is taken up by the advertisement for the opening of Doris O'Neil's exclusive new dress shop. All her creations are being designed by Mary Papastavros and modelled by Mary Nee. On the back page are the pictures of the winners of the art contest sponsored by Elizabeth Sacco, director of the Fine Arts Museum. Glancing out the window I see a large sign "Claire Finn's Day Nursery". I could hardly believe this was the same girl who in '47 told me she hated squabbling children.

I arrive in Jamaica Plain just in time to catch the Greenough Ave. bus. (Incidentally this bus line has been put in by courtesy of the School Committee so all J. Pites will now get to school on time.) The first one I meet as I enter the school is Frances Robar. Fran liked locker patrol so well she has taken over the job permanently. She tells me that Phyllis Paul is still going to J. P. trying to beat that nine o'clock bell. Several pupils are now on the faculty. Anne Puleo has taken over Mr. O'Leary's book-keeping classes. Mary Sciaba has full charge of the Yearbook. Virginia Redmond, who never could sing a note is taking Mr. Illingsworth's place as teacher of music.

I take my departure. As I start across the street Barbara Salisbury goes whizzing by in her jet propelled Ford. Barbara is Jamaica Plain's leading playgirl having married herself to a herring fortune. Farther down the street I meet Marjorie Quinton and Barbara Scurrah; Marjorie turned out to be the best pupil the Chandler School ever had. Barbara is a medical secretary, and after seeing Dr. Hughes I can understand why. We stop to chat for awhile, and I find out many interesting things. For instance:

Catherine Stenson and Margaret Singer are now hard working housewives.

Two of our girls have left J.P. Katherine Schmidt is living in Missouri with her husband; Annabelle Sampson is happily married and living in a quonset in Korea.

Norma Simpson and Mary O'Connor are rival vocalists. Both are trying to get jobs with the Jamaica Plain Swing Band.

Angelina Pignat is riding instructor at the Wright Stables.

Margaret McDonald's dancing school has turned out to be a real threat to Arthur Murray.

Gloria Aitken has made quite a bit of money in the publication of her "Book of Poems".

Elizabeth Preble, who we feared would be an old maid has now become John's other wife.

Helen Pokorski is a famous model and poses for all the Clarion covers.

Clara Perrotta and Ellen Sheedy are private secretaries to the two big bosses at Western Union.

Rose James is the owner of the Rose-o-Roller Skating Rink. Incidentally she sends all her accident cases to the Rokis Nursing Home. Gloria's head nurse is the brilliant Winifred Killian.

At the corner we bid one another goodby. I proceed home happy at seeing my Classmates and delighted with the success of so many.

LOUISE REISSFELDER 206.

Chapter 7

One night in the year 1950 four of us gathered around a table in Stefaney's "Spiritorium"; Stefaney had taken up fortune telling because he wanted a job with a future in it. Our purpose was to seek information about some of our schoolmates who had climbed the ladder of success. It was while Stefaney had stepped out to check his radar connections with the future that we sneaked a peak into his crystal; what we saw follows.

The first materialization in our futuristic television screen was that of George Munchbach who had taken over his father's poultry farm. Everything looks good for George; he's on the way to becoming Secretary of Agriculture in Massachusetts. His own chicken farm is well modernized; the hens not only lay square eggs (which makes for easier packing) but the trade mark is already on them.

These eggs, by the way, were designed by Gordon Lesslie, who is the leading designer of farm machinery.

Our next vision shifted us to Wall Street where we find ourselves outside an office. It is a big place and on the door is printed:

FRANK PUOPOLO — BROKER

A fitting position for one with Frank's experience; after all Frank was broke more often than anyone else in school.

Just then the door opens and Charles Kiddy (who owns one of the largest dairy farms in the country) comes out with his foreman, William Jenkins, who has just retired having made the world's biggest high jump, one jump ahead of their prize bull.

Leaving this famous financial district we saw Paul O'Connor headed for the bank to deposit the contracts for his famous football team in a safe deposit box. He bumped into John Scannell who was headed in the same direction. John is the owner of New England's leading hockey team. Paul told John that he was planning to use Dick Robichaud and Dave Sullivan, two of his best men, in his next game. John said he had made Justin Power his business manager, which means more POWER to him.

Suddenly and unexpectedly our crystal transported us across the continent depositing us among the Redwoods of California where Paul Marks was found patrolling the forest as a Wildlife Conservation Agent for the Government. His chief assistant is William Healy.

Again our scene changed suddenly and we found ourselves in the movie colony. Over at MGM James Talis' laugh has replaced the roar of the lion that has gone into retirement.

James Doyle has become the leading bad man of the silver screen and we don't mean bad as an actor for he has turned in some fine performances for Robert Tryon Productions, another J.P. man to crash the inner sanctum of Hollywood. Some others of J.P. have found their way to the movie capital; these include William Fitzgerald, Richard Lawlor, Paul Tracy, and Richard Mullins (the leading heart-throb of the nation).

Being men with large incomes these stars are able to pay large sums for their suits which they purchase from Paul Singer's famous nation-wide clothing stores.

On our journey back we crossed paths with a hugh airliner that was piloted by Emile Genest and Harold Hucksam, two boys who have always had high ideas.

Among their passengers are two of America's foreign Ambassadors, William Jennings, Ambassador to Moscow and Maurice Lerman, Ambassador to Brooklyn.

When finally our crystal carrier deposited us back in Boston we found ourselves in front of a building marked McCarthy, Muldoon, and Mitchell, three of Boston's leading lawyers.

We heard someone mention Lawrence Shields who is whacking out a sports column for the Daily Post under the able editorship of Charles Killion.

As our vision grew dim we saw two others who are making good in the newspaper business, Paul Lozier and William Cronin, but then that stand at Park Street was always good for selling newspapers.

Smoke begins to cloud the crystal and someone ventured to ask if that smoke wasn't from Rudolph Kurrelmyer's factory which is on the way to monopolizing the pipe industry.

Suddenly everything vanished and we turned to find Stefaney glowering at us. The "us" being John Stevens (owner of Lux Theatres Incorporated), Al Sullivan (leading cartoonist and illustrator of children's books), and Paul Short, who has been traveling around New England entertaining ??? with a comedy show after inheriting all of Bob Hope's old jokes.

In our defense we told Stefaney that we had been dabbling in spirits and slipped quietly out of his office marked "Stefaney's Society for Startling Scientific Seances".

PAUL SHORT 113.

Class Will

We the graduating class of Jamaica Plain High School, being of debilitated body and soul, do devise and bequeath our property and possessions as follows:

- To J. P. H. S.—A never-ending line of students who will love you as we have.
- To Mr. Casey—An enormous “thanks” for his helpfulness and understanding during our three years here.
- To Miss Morrissey—A new set of cheerful smiles to replace those which have been used on us.
- To Miss Mullin—An army of Gremlins capable of aiding “college bewildered” seniors.
- To Miss Dowd—A collection of pre-set alarm clocks to be presented to the “ever-late” students.
- To Mrs. Tracy—A new type of medicine guaranteed to cure those who get a bad case of “test” illness.
- To Miss Donlan—Several sets of well put together brains to be presented to the next Yearbook staff.
- To the English Department—A high stack of recordings of the books due for book reports to be played by students in order to prevent “last night cramming.”
- To the Art Department—Some jointed dolls that may be easily adjusted to any pose and stay that way, as good models should.
- To the Biology Department—A huge basket of clothespins which pupils may put on their noses when working with formaldehyde-preserved frogs.
- To the Chemistry Department—A new type of test tube with a lifetime guarantee.
- To the Agricultural Department—A live “moo cow” with a plate glass tummy that the students may witness what happens in the real thing.
- To the Physical Education Department—Brand new muscles to be given out to replace those which the instructors now receive many complaints about.
- To the Language Department—A supply of plastic tongues which may be inserted to assure correct pronunciation.
- To the Math Department—An enormous supply of new books with the problems all done out.
- To the Library—A compressed jack-in-the-box for each book which will jump out at the pupil on the day this book is due.
- To Mr. Cunningham—A group of talented people who will help him act in his next E8 class.
- To Miss Campion—A set of ear plugs which she may insert at those times when the girls dash to the locker room.
- To Mr. Donnellan—A match box which will never be empty.
- To Mr. Mealy—A rowboat, airplane and automobile that he may better illustrate those tedious problems.
- To Miss Ruggles—A collection of our more hurried translations entitled “Virgil Never Meant It This Way”.
- To Coach Bond—Our spirit which will help him to gain many victories in the future.
- To Miss O'Malley—A well-stocked refrigerator so that she may pass out samples of the well-planned diets to her nutrition classes.
- To Bookkeeping Classes—A geni who will do all the adding for those who find it a bit(?) difficult.
- To Typing Classes—A new keyboard containing one key only which prints the letter you want by mental telepathy.
- To the History Department—A new kind of machine to be placed on pupils' heads for a short space of time leaving within all historic dates.
- To the Dressmaking Department—A supply of automatic needles that allow a period of day dreaming and still allow the completion of those precious seams.
- To Miss Johnson—A lifetime supply of aspirin to take after receiving stories of aches and pains from those who “must be excused.”
- To the Underclassmen—All the new inventions mentioned above which will prove to you that “Life Can Be Beautiful.”
